Education is extremely important. As every child knows, the more you learn about a topic, the better off you are. This never changes. Yet as we age, we tend to take some things for granted. Take funeral arrangements for example. Most people never think about them until they have to make them. This is always a stressful time in peoples' lives, and not being prepared makes it even more so.

That is why Kok Funeral Home decided to have an informational seminar entitled:

Planning Ahead-Things you need to know for you and your family's protection.

This seminar was held twice on the same day at both our Cottage Grove, MN and St. Paul Park, MN locations. Greetings and Introduction were handled by William Jorgensen, Managing Director. Julie Harrigan, Prearrangement Specialist, covered funeral planning, pre-funding, and travel care. Estate planning was covered by attorney Craig Goldman, Attorney at Law, who came at our request to help answer legal questions. William Jorgensen also talked about changing trends and consumer preferences in funeral service.

A question and answer session was held following the presentations that yielded many questions and discussions. Lunch was provided for all as well as door prize drawings.

The seminar was a huge success leading to many attendees signing up to preplan the own services. Attendees commented to all staff over and over again how much this informational session helped them understand how much more we do behind the scenes, and expressed their gratitude for all the help and information we gave to them.
